come witty and cynical on the subject of these machines. So when he and Barney started out to take a drive, it being near to the hour of 4 o'clock, and Fred being blessed with a fine appetite, he inquired of Dreyfuss as to where he expected to take supper? "Oh, anywhere we happen to stop," carelessly replied Barney. "But," answered Clarke, as he lit a cigar, "we won't be able to eat as often as that, will we?"

Haunted by Killed Balls.
The day after Ed DeChanty had made his unequalled record of knocking five home runs in one day, he came out to the ball park, looking as if he had been up all through the night; and when Chick Frazer, the pitcher, called his attention to this fact, the big fellow replied: "And that's no lie either, Chick; I dreamed of baseball all throughout the night; my room seemed to be filled with them. Talking about being haunted, I was haunted last night."

"What more can you expect, Ed," the witty pitcher inquired, "but being haunted by baseball when you kill as many as you did yesterday?"

Nick Altrock's Bon Mot.
Nick Altrock of the Chicago club is one of the merriest ball players in the profession today, as well as one of the most original among the jokers. He and Ed Walsh, the big pitcher, are continually joshing one another in a good natured way.

The other day they were talking about some mutual acquaintance, who is famous for his "knocking" proclivities, and Nick said to Ed: "Why, that fellow, Ed, has a regular automobile tongue."

"How is that?" inquired Walsh, puzzled. "Why, he is always running somebody down," replied the merry Nicholas.

Case Patten Gets Off a Good One.
A crowd of the Washington ball players were assembled out at the club house when a discussion arose regarding the number of players that each year break into the professions. Leave Cross spoke up and said that this practice of ball players becoming members of the professions was comparatively a new stunt of the baseball man, as in the old days there were not nearly so many players who were inclined to study. They usually went into business.

Some one in the back of the room shouted out that he did not believe in professions anyway, as they were mostly all overworked now and there was a very slim chance for a young fellow getting to the top in any of them nowadays.

"I know a profession," cried out Case Patten, "where any young man can find room at the top."

"And what profession is that, Case?" interestedly inquired Hickman, while the rest of the crowd stopped twirling themselves in order to listen.

"Why, the aeronautic profession," replied Case.

Eating at a Fast Rate.

"Zaza" Harvey, who played outfield on the Cleveland team a few years back, was good in every department of the game and was fast making a great record for himself when his stomach went back on him, which necessitated his retirement from the game when he was right in his prime.

The Cleveland management, knowing how valuable a player Harvey was, did all in its power to keep him in condition, and "Zaza" himself was the most careful of all in following the doctor's advice as to eating slowly, dieting himself, and so forth.

But one day Billy Woods threw consternation into the camp of the Clevelanders by bursting into the clubhouse, while the rest of the players were discussing Harvey's case, and exclaiming:

"Who do you mean is careful in eating, Harvey? Why, man, it's no such thing; I saw him eating at a fearful rate the other day."

"Where was that, Billy?" asked Armour, much concerned.

"Why, on a railroad train, between Philadelphia and New York, and she was travelling at the rate of sixty miles an hour," responded the gay cut up, as he made for his locker.

Tim Hurst on Joy and Grief.

The New Yorks had just taken a game from the Philadelphia, and it happened on the Highlanders' grass plot. The spectators were well pleased with the result, and pretty near every man who was leaving the ground had a smile of satisfaction overspreading his countenance, which caused the pitcher Al Orth to remark to the umpire Tim Hurst:

"The smile is the same, Tim, in all languages."

"Yes, and so is the grunt," replied the cynical Mr. Hurst, who in his experience on the ball field has had every chance to acquire wisdom concerning the follies of human nature.

Why the Young Leaguers Know It All.

Mullen of the Detroit is a player much interested in abstruse subjects, and spends much in reading up on such matters. The other day, when the Detroit team was crossing on the boat to Cleveland, he and Bill Coughlin were sitting next to each other, and Mullen, who was reading a paper, turned to Bill and said:

"An article in this paper, Bill, says that the older a man grows the smaller his brain becomes. What do you think of it?"

"Perhaps that's the reason," replied Coughlin, "that these young leaguers know so much more about the game than the old fellows."

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

SPRING AILMENTS.

A man and a house need the same thing in spring—a good cleaning out.

A certain amount of impurities have gathered in both during the winter. I am no authority for house cleaning. So far as the man is concerned Cooper's New Discovery taken for two weeks will bring the desired result. It will positively do these three things—clean out the stomach and bowels, tone up the system generally, and bring back the snap to body and mind (that now seem dull and worn out). Try it and see if you won't be as pleased as Mr. Hull, whose letter I quote below:

"I suffered a general breaking down of the system. Had no appetite, poor digestion and was constipated. I lost ambition and took no interest in anything. Nothing I could do seemed to give me relief until upon a friend's advice I began to use Cooper's New Discovery. It helped me from the start. Now I am able to do as much work as the next one and I enjoy it. I have a hearty appetite and am stronger and better every way. Your New Discovery medicine is certainly the best tonic and system builder I have ever known." A. W. Hull, 142 Porter St., Detroit, Mich.

These are the famous medicines with which Mr. Cooper recently created such a stir in Chicago. His demonstrations there attracted wide attention. We are agents. The Academy Pharmacy Co., cor. Washington and 33d St., West End Pharmacy, Hampton.
